A. Children's Games in Laos

Answer Sheet

Hmong children who grow up in Laos often work hard. They help their parents work in the garden and take care of pigs, chickens, and cows. But they like to play, too.

Children like to spin tops, jump rope, and play tag. Many children throw and catch balls. They build with sticks and blocks. Someone in their family makes all the toys from cloth, wood, or plant materials. Some children like to ride horses. They also tell jokes and stories with friends.

Hmong adults who came from Laos did many of these things when they were children. If you know any people who are from Laos, ask them about the games they played.
