

Amazin' Asian Worksheet

E. An Everyday Morning in NANGONE

Sequence ordering

Here is a story about a Hmong family living in the mountains of Laos - but the story is all mixed up! Number the sentences to rearrange them so that the story is in the correct order.

- _____ My name is Blong and I am 10 years old.
- _____ Everyone walks to the rice or corn or vegetable fields except the two youngest children.
- _____ Our food is cooked over an open fire.
- _____ He also lets the chickens and ducks out of their pens when the sun rises.
- _____ Every morning the rooster crows at about 3:00 AM.
- _____ We have a house made of bamboo and sleep on mats on the floor.
- _____ My oldest sister wakes up first and puts water on the fire to boil.
- _____ They stay home to watch the house and keep the animals out.
- _____ After they finish breakfast, the whole family talks about which field to work in today.
- _____ I live with my mother and father, grandmother, aunt, and 5 brothers and sisters.
- _____ Then my older brother gets up and chops weeds and grass for the horses and cows, and shucks corn or hulls rice for the chickens.
- _____ Mother, father and the younger children finally wake up, wash up, and eat their breakfast.
- _____ She makes breakfast for us and for the pigs.